Please note:
All data needs to be created according to the General Print Specifications.

Record labels are exposed to strong heat during production.
This can cause the paper / inks to turn yellow.

Particularly light pantone tones, which consist of 50% or more of transparent-white, as well as screened blue tones (CMYK), can be subject to severe colour changes.

Metallic and neon colours can partially or completely lose the desired effect.

We can neither predict how a possible discolouration will turn out, nor do we have any influence on it.
